which a state could prohibit the manufacture and use of intoxicants. Now, if the use of intoxicants were a crime, the question arose whether it was best to use more superficial treatment or to resort to a complete eradication. That it was a crime could be seen from the expression of men like Lincoln, and by the United States Supreme Court.

Here the speaker read excerpts from speeches by Lincoln, and from Supreme Court opinions.

That liquor was the supreme cause of crime, not only in the United States, but in the whole world, had been made evident to Mr. Dahms by a thorough knowledge of one of the greatest criminal institutions in the world. Sixty-six per cent of the crime which had sent men there had been committed by these men while they were under the influence of liquor. Statistics from other countries showed that sixty per cent of all crime was committed under the influence of strong drink. The executioner of England, who had executed over five hundred people, said that ninety per cent of these had committed their crimes through the influence of liquor.

WINSTON DIVORCE

SUIT CONTINUED

The divorce case of E. C. Winston and Mary Winston was on before Judge Robinson this morning and after being before the court for an hour and more was continued until tomorrow morning in order that a letter might be found to be introduced in evidence.

Winston brings the suit alleging that his wife deserted him in July 1908, but the testimony of the two principals on the stand was of a contradictory nature.

In his examination Winston stated that he had lived in Honolulu for 30 years, that he had that city had been his home for that time although he had been absent for periods. He is now 63 years of age and during the time he has resided in this city Mary Winston has never lived with him as his wife.

He said that he had asked his wife to live with him but that she had refused to do so as they could not get along together.

On cross-examination by Attorney Prouser, representing Mrs. Winston, the witness stuck to his story given on direct examination.

Prouser and Olson had several lively spats during the cross-examination, the latter objecting to the introduction of an agreement dated September 1, 1904, between the husband and wife, in which they agreed to live apart.

Mrs. Winston on the stand testified that she wanted to live with her husband and had asked him to take her home with him, but that he had refused to do so, saying that she was an ignorant woman and that he could not tolerate her. "I have never refused to live with him," she reiterated.

On cross-examination by Olson Mrs. Winston said that she and her husband had not lived together for nine years. A letter purporting to have been written by her husband in which he asked her to come and live with him could not be found and Mrs. Winston did not know where it was. In order that a search might be made the case was adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

BUFFALO CAUSE

OF SMASH

Tom Quinn Auto Case Should End Sometime Tomorrow

Nearly all the morning was taken up at the police court by the Tom Quinn automobile accident case. The defense put on four witnesses who all testified to having seen or heard something of the smash.

John Walker stated that he had heard the crash and had gone to the scene of the accident. He also said that he had seen a water buffalo on the road. He did not see the accident occur, and knew nothing more of the affair. The next witness was J. H. Pierce who saw the automobile pass him and then heard the crash as it hit the wagon.

Lieutenant Burchfield, who was a passenger in Quinn's automobile at the time of the accident, testified that he had telephoned to Quinn to come out to his house and take him to the skating rink where a Marathon race was being skated. He got in the machine and sat on the front seat on Quinn's left. On King street Quinn slowed down his car as a hack came out on the road from Piliot street. Then shortly afterwards a water buffalo appeared right in front of the auto and for some distance kept running along in front and slightly to the right. After proceeding some yards the animal turned to the left and Quinn, to avoid running into the beast, also turned and at once hit a wagon, which up to that moment witness had not seen.

Private Barclay, who also was a passenger in the automobile, testified that he was in the rear seat and he corroborated Lieutenant Burchfield's evidence.

Tom Quinn was the next witness, and he told a straight forward story of how he had picked up his load at Waikiki, and had proceeded at a moderate rate of speed along Kalakana avenue to King street. He stated that his passenger had asked him to speed up as he was late for the skating race, but Quinn said he did not do so as he did not want to get into any more accidents.

Witness swore that it was a rainy night, and that it was difficult to see any distance through his wind shield as the water had made it misty. He, however, kept going at a speed of from ten to fifteen miles an hour, and when near the Oahu Flower garden saw a water buffalo running along in front of him. He slowed up and after a while the animal turned to its left. Quinn to avoid running into the buffalo, at once also turned his car a little the next moment he ran into the wagon which he had not seen before. He had put on his breaks and shut off his gasoline and he did not hit the wagon a very hard blow. He got out of his machine and did not see any anten at first. A little time afterwards some one picked up the lamp and remarked: "Here is the lantern."

On cross examination, Quinn said that he saw no light, nor did he see the wagon till he hit it. If he had seen the wagon he would have preferred to have hit the buffalo instead of the vehicle.

Both the prosecution and defense then rested and Judge Andrade continued the case till tomorrow morning for argument by counsel.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT DENIED

The writ of habeas corpus, brought by Attorney Achi against Sheriff Henry to bring the body of Kuna into court was dismissed by Judge Robinson this afternoon and Kuna remained to the custody of the high sheriff.

Kuna was sentenced to prison by Judge De Bolt on November 24 last for biting off the tongue of one Hoopli, the sentence being given under the indeterminate proviso.

Six months was the minimum imposed by the court and that time was up May 24. Under the legislative law of 1909 the court may impose a minimum sentence which shall not be more than the maximum sentence allowed, which in this case would be ten years.

Kuna can be held in jail for the ten years unless the board of prison inspectors shall see fit to parole him. In order to get free a petition has to be made to the board and that body may parole the prisoner for a period of six months, after which he may be discharged from custody.

It is understood that a petition has already been presented to the board for the parole of the prisoner.

LACKS DIGNITY SAYS CATHCART

Today In Referring To L. Andrews Actions Before Court

"There is one lawyer on the defense whose conduct during parts of the trial angered me," said County Attorney Cathcart this morning in addressing the jury in the Wong Chew case.

"This man sat there smiling, or what he thought was smiling, during the examination of witnesses, and nodding his head at the answers given. I may be getting peevish in my old age, but I don't believe that man has the proper conception of the dignity of his profession, the importance of this case, the dignity of this court or the common sense of you jurymen to act in that manner. His actions were aimed at the jury, and that may go in other countries, but not here before a jury of men with some common sense."

Cathcart's denunciation was directed at Lavin Andrews, who appeared for one of the defendants.

In his address to the jury he called attention forcibly to the perjured testimony given by the witnesses who said that they did not know the man was stabbed, and then, with a sweeping gesture, took from a bundle the clothes of the dead man and threw them piece by piece on the floor at the feet of the jurymen, each garment having dried blood stains on it and the shirt being matted with dried blood.

Judge Cooper began his charge to the jury at 11:15 and at 11:45 the jury retired.
